

PROFESSIONAL POLICING AND LEADERSHIP INSTITUTE

Designed for sergeants, corporals, officers, and mid-level management non-sworn personnel, this 10-day course (held over three separate weeks) is an advanced leadership program that will provide emerging leaders with the tools they need to succeed.

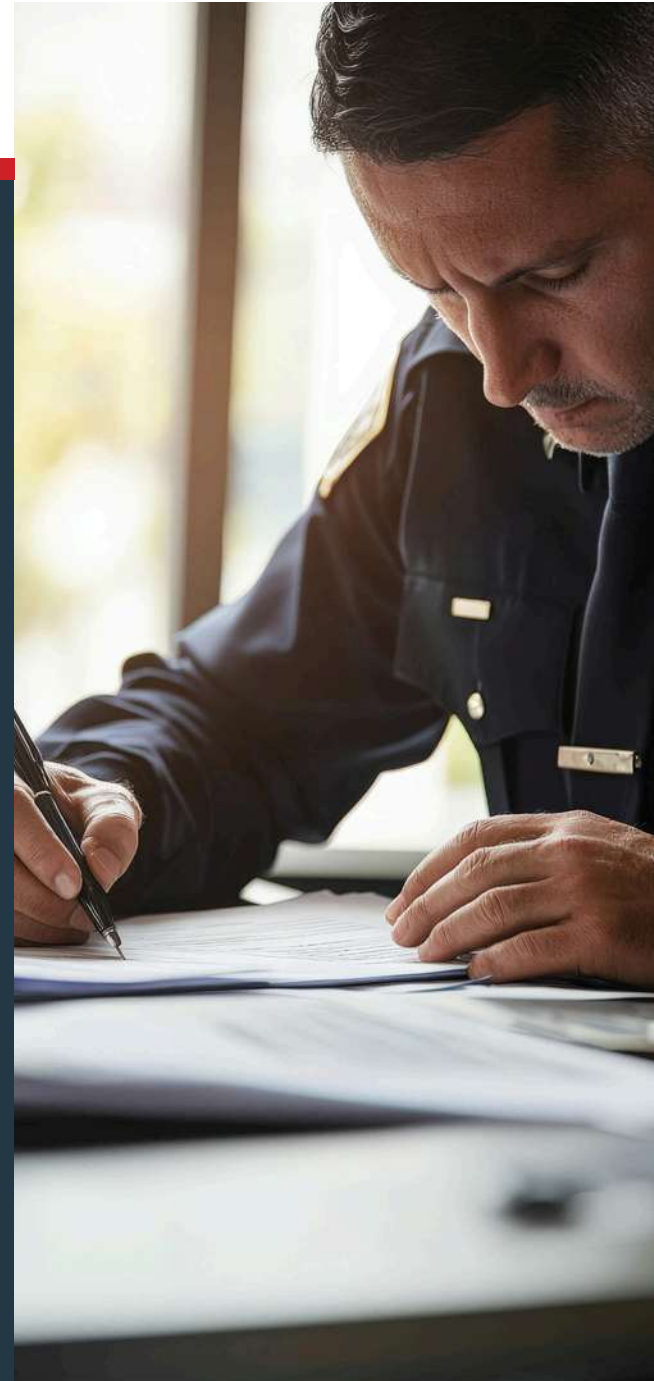

Originally developed by the Denver Police Department and the University of Denver, this program is now open to all Colorado Law Enforcement Agencies. Each law enforcement-specific cohort provides education and career-enhancing, high-quality, evidence-based training offering an innovative approach to transforming public safety education and promoting ethical leadership, and action-based learning.

Program instructors include University of Denver faculty, academic policing scholars, senior police professionals, and business leaders.

All classes will be held at CIRSA headquarters, 3665 Cherry Creek Drive North, Denver, CO, 80209. Lunch will be provided each day.

Course Highlights

- Specialized modules addressing the future of policing
- Practical leadership exercises and case studies
- Interactive, project management workshops
- Academic-led discussions on evidence-based policing strategies

SEE WHAT EVERYONE IS SAYING...

"The DPD PPLI provides much more than any typical leadership course - you can look forward to learning about yourself, others, new and innovative law enforcement leadership strategies that are useful immediately, and all from instructors and facilitators that are in our field as well as academia."

"As an Officer/Cpl/Sgt, you will gain a reset on policing and build a foundation of respect for all aspects of LE and those that support the mission of LE. You will gain insight into what being a leader, both formally and informally, looks like, and you will gain direction and clarity in your career."

"Open to all Sworn and Professional staff who want to better their understanding of successful Law Enforcement leadership programming. Learn how to better your leadership skills set and collaborate with teammates on leadership efforts."

"This was a great training for current and future leaders. I really like all the "science" behind leadership and policing. The wealth of knowledge that sits in the room is VERY valuable and not only did I learn from the coursework I also learned from everyone in the room. All topics were relatable. There are not many courses I would take twice - but I would have done this twice because I know that I did not digest all the information I would have liked."
